

Civilian conservation corps, South Dakota district history: That the work of young America may be recorded

This pamphlet records the history and roster of members of 26 CCC camps located in the Black Hills of South Dakota. During the Depression each state was allotted a certain number of camps, which employed millions of young men. Included in this record are photos of staff, members and scenes of the camps and surrounding areas. Many of these published histories did not survive and are quite rare.
