

The Georgia and South Carolina Coastal Expeditions of Clarence Bloomfield Moore (Classics Southeast Archaeology)

A Dan Josselyn Memorial Publication This facsimile edition of Moores Georgia and South Carolina expeditions includes an extensive new introduction from Georgias senior archaeologist. This compilation of Clarence Bloomfield Moores investigations along the rich coastal and river drainages of Georgia and South Carolina makes available in a single volume valuable works published a century ago. By modern standards Moores excavation techniques were crude, but his results were nothing less than spectacular. He recorded data with care, and much information can be learned from his works. In some cases his publications are the only documentation extant for sites that have since been destroyed. In one case, relic collectors had destroyed six mounds at Masons Plantation the largest Mississippian center in the Savannah River valley by the time Moore visited the site in 1897. Moore also documented prehistoric urn burials, a ritual widely practiced in eastern North America but more frequently on the Gulf Coastal Plain of Alabama and coastal sites in Georgia and South Carolina. In the introduction, Lewis Larson discusses Moores investigations within the framework of the current understanding of Georgia and South Carolina coastal archaeological chronology.
